

2006 HMO Complaint Index

The Missouri Department of Insurance, Financial Institutions and Professional Registration encourages consumers to use the complaint index as a “tiebreaker” in choosing an insurance policy - after carefully considering individual insurance needs, benefits, premium costs, service and other factors in your purchasing decision.

The complaint index measures how many consumer complaints that the department received from 2003-2005 relative to the amount of commercial HMO business written in Missouri. The index covers all complaints related to commercial HMO enrollment (employer and other groups), not Medicaid and Medicare.

The higher the index number, the worse the complaint ratio:

- 100 percent means that the department received the normally expected number of complaints about that company.
- 99 percent or less indicates the company was the subject of less than the normally expected number of complaints.
- More than 100 percent shows the department received more than the normally expected number of complaints about that company.
